Happy 50th Earth Day!

Happy Earth Day 2020 to our customers and friends. This year, we have decided to celebrate Earth Month with a variety of ideas to honor and commemorate the special and delicate relationship we have to our Planet.

We are feeling especially humbled to be a business so deeply connected to the Earth as we witness first hand the important role plants and their cultivation play in human life. As an essential business, we remain open to our customers for remote ordering - in accordance with local rules, we are asking customers to call, email, or order through the website. Our staff are on hand to answer your phone calls Monday through Friday, 8AM to 3PM weekdays and 9AM-1PM on Saturday. Just no in person visits at this time.

We look forward to the day when we can see your friendly faces again at our nursery grounds in San Jose. In the meantime, we look forward to serving you through alternative means. Thank you for being so accommodating as we adjust to the continuing changes in the Community.

Earth-friendly gardening and landscaping advice goes far beyond "Save the Earth, plant a tree!" With the theme of Earth Day 2020 "Climate Action," there's no time better than now to examine your relationship with the Earth. Every time we make a choice having to do with plants - from planting, to harvesting, to eating - we impact our ecosystem, for better or worse.

This Earth Day, you might have more time on your hands than usual; or you might be working harder than ever as an "essential business." Either way, consider taking time to ponder the following concepts regarding your relationship to plants and the Earth:

What is a sustainable landscape, and why does it matter?

As a Certified Green Business, we have a special page on our site dedicated to Sustainability \(Capitol Wholesale Nursery\).

Do my gardens and landscapes feature native plants and flowers?

There is lots of information out there about native plant gardening and landscaping. Try reading 10 Tips for Native Plant Landscaping \(Farmer's Almanac\) or Why Native Plants Matter \(Audubon\).

What more can I do to be a positive contributor to our local and global environment?

Visit EarthDay.org's "Take Action" site to learn what you can do. Or, read about 10 Ways You Can Help Pollinators in Your Backyard \(Farmer's Almanac\).

Could I learn more about my local ecosystem when planning my landscapes?

Use this helpful, free Native Plant Finder Tool when planning landscapes for your local environment. Just enter your zip code to get started.

What can I do from home on Earth Day?

This year, Earth Day is going digital. Visit EarthDay.org to learn more, search for digital events in your area, and learn other ways to contribute. Plus, check back on our website all month for new tips, tricks, and Earth Month ideas.

Earth Month 2020 Tips and Tricks

Turn Off the Faucet! This Earth Day, we are washing our hands frequently. We can be more mindful of turning off the faucet while we do so, saving gallons of water in the process.

Turn Off the Car Going out for a curbside pickup of groceries, or stopping by CWN to pick up your order? Turn off your car while you wait to save emissions.

Add Plants to Your Home, or Plant a Garden! Starting a garden is a great way to spend time while stay at home orders are in place and cultivate the Earth at the same time. Whether indoors or outdoors, CWN has a wide variety of plants to get you started.
