KEEPING IT GREEN: 7 PLANTS FOR LUSCIOUS AUTUMN FOLIAGE

This time of year, some plants start to turn brown and dry up, or begin to go into dormancy. If you or your clients are looking to keep a fresh, autumnal look through the fall and avoid the dreaded brown landscape, what can you do?

Fortunately, we carry many plants that look gorgeous throughout the fall season. Some are autumn bloomers; others remain green through winter; and still others show off more classic fall foliage, putting on a lovely show on their way to dormancy, turning gorgeous shades of orange, red, and yellow.

Check out a few of our favorites below:

Epilobium canum
'Catalina'
- California native
- Silver foliage
- Orange-red flowers
late summer/early fall

Nandina domestica
'Chime'
- Threadlike leaves
- Evergreen shrub
- Turns orange/red in winter

Grevillea 'King's Fire'
- Released in 2016
- Silver-green shrub

the year

Hydrangea
quercifolia 'Snow
Queen'
- Rich brown bark
- Dark green leaves
turn purple in winter

Pistache Chinensis
'Keith Davey'
- Autumn favorite!
- Deciduous tree

through autumn

Acanthus mollis
'Tasmanian Angel'
- White mottled leaves
- Bold, coarse texture
- Evergreen in warm
winter climates

Succulents

If you're feeling lost, succulents are always a go-to choice for autumn. Many turn orange-red when exposed to the sun, and there are so many colors, textures and forms available; from hanging pots to groundcover to statement plants like Euphorbia "Sticks on Fire", shown here.

Garden & Landscaping

For California gardeners, October harvest means persimmons, pumpkins, and pomegranates; squash, walnuts, almonds, apples and pears; and many others. Whatever you've grown this summer, it's time to harvest, sell, cook, and share your bounty.

As the cool weather moves in, October is also the time to start thinking about Autumn planting, or if you're not planning a seasonal garden, preparing your soil to overwinter til next Spring. UC Master Gardeners offers an incredibly helpful October Garden checklist covering all these topics and more - check it out via the link below!
